CHANGE is a word that has been in the news quite a bit lately....

It is also something we have been trying to institute in regards to Turner Originals; and it has not been easy! Basically, Turner Originals has always been scheduled for production based upon fabric being ordered a few times a year and then shirts being made and stored. This means that when we would run out of a color/size it would be months before new production would be scheduled. Now, we are changing to a system where shirts are manufactured on a weekly basis and extra fabric is stored. This allows us to react to market trends much easier with only a two week turn around time in the future! Besides trying to teach a new way of doing business to a very old manufacturing process we have also had to deal with breakdowns of our automatic cutting machine and our automatic pocket machine. But now everything is running smoothly and CHANGE has been implemented! With these changes we can now add new products and colors and work them into production on a regular basis rather than having everything tied up in inventory...thank you for your patience! More changes to come!
